-In Liverpool cotton closed strong; uplands 9fa10d; Orleans 10fd; sales 20,000 bales.

-The hearts of the ladles Leap for joy at the advent of the new year. .- They pretend now that the plaintiff in the

Tichborne case is a Tichborne, but not Roger. -In the Wharton murder trial, yesterday, Professor Reese was dismissed after five hours' cross examination. -A cargo of ninety tons of ice from the Alps, which was dispatched to India by the Suez canal route, had melted away to four tons when it reached 4s destination. -The Susquehannah canal has been leased by the Reading Railroad, with the intention of making Havre de Grace a large coal depot for the Southern shipping. -The year just commenced is what is generally known as Leap year, February having twenty-nine days. It is one of the years in which the calm, conservative order of things is supposed to be overturned very violently, in which the ladies are supposed to lay aside their coquetry and the privilege of saying "yes," and to assume the delicately discriminating task of selecting their own husbands. -The Methodist, the organ of that denomination, published in New York, suggests a novel measure for the government of the church whose organ it is. This measure is nothing less than that, the church assume the direct support of the bishops. In order that this may the more easily be done, it is proposed to reduce the number of presiding elders one half, which would save a surplus of $140,000 per annum for the support of the .- The press of Mississippi unite in calling a convention of the representatives of political conservatism in that State. The convention will be held at Meridian, on the 23d of estly desires to give South Carolina a decent January. It is to be remarked that most of the papers of the State speak of this meeting as non-partisan. It is designed by most of them to organize a party which may rescue the State from the hands of those who have plundered it, and in attaining this end they ignore all partisan associations.

injury. -The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "It seems probable that the government, upon the retirement from office of Attorney-General Akerman, on the 10th of January, will engage his services as counsel in the Ku-King cases in the South. to show to the law-breakers in the Southern States that the administration will not recede from its attitude on the subject of the disloyal outrages. It is also learned that additional legal assistance must be obtained, and, as Mr. Aberman is fully informed as to the cases and their standing, he is thought to be, there re, the most capable of performing the duties which the government will require. It is not known that Mr. Akerman will accept the employment, if tendered, but it seems rerobable he will be placed in charge of the cases, if he accepts the position." -John M. Morris, editor of the Washington Chronicle, has begun an action for libel against William J. Murtagh, editor of the Washington Republican, laying damages at States. $20,000. Mr. Morris is one of the executive clerks of the United States Senate, and assumed the management of the Chronicle about a year ago, succeeding John W. Forney. He owned, previously to that time, the Charleston Republican, which has since died. The Washington Republican has charged editorially that Morris was running the Chronicle on money obtained from South Carolina State officers whom the State Legislature has been trying to impeach, and has called upon the Senate to make an investigation, since the charges reflected upon one of its officers. It is these charges which are met by the libel _During the period of twenty years, from the beginning of 1859 to the close of 1870, 2,267,500 German immigrants arrived in this country. The largest immigration of this thrifty class of our foreign population in a single year took place in 1869, when the aggregate was 124,766. The war with France stopped the tide for several months, so that the total for the year 1870 fell to 91,000; but since the peace, the oid desire of the Germans to find new homes here has returned with such vigor as to create alarm in the cabinet of Berlin. It is not, therefore, surprising to hear that the government of the new empire is devising schemes by which to keep the German people upon German soil. The first indication of this movement is the account of an agreement between the governments of Berlin and Vienna to divert towards the Austrian Empire the ficod which is once more setting westward. It is understood that no measures of coercion wil' be employed to effect the desired result, but Bismarck and Beust have settled the preliminaries for the indirect exercise of powerful influences. The German Empire is overstocked with labor, and wages are low; but Austria lacks supplies of workmen, both in her factories and her fields, and offers prices fifty per cent. higher than those now paid under the rule of William. The bait is tempting, and will be very likely to draw off many enterprising Germans who have hitherto regarded the United States as the land of promise.

than President Grant has for more than twenty years been a defaulter. It seems that during the Mexican war Grant, who was then a lieutenant in the army, acted as commissary and quartermaster. At the close of the war there was a deficit of five thousand dollars in his accounts. His attention was repeatedly called to it by the accounting officers of the treasury, and repeated demands were made upon him to pony up, but he never condescended to take the least notice of the un answerable letters which were addressed to him. He had spent the money and of course was unable to return it; for in those days his character and habits were such that no one would think of lending or giving him even so much as a five dollar note. In 1862, through some hocus pocus, a bill was engineered through Congress appropriating $1000 to him in compensation of a sum of equal amount alleged by him to have been stolen from him in 1848, when a quartermaster in Mexico. But, to Grant's great disgust, the treasury officials pounced upon this one thousand and carried it to the credit of the old score. It was then thought that there night be some was Grant notified that he was in default, and urged to settle his little bill; but it was all of no avail, and to this day, with the exception of the one thousand dollars credit, Ulysses S. have owed the United States five thousand dolars for more than twenty years. Complete Representation.

caused by the discovery that no less a person

A prominent feature in the proposed new charter for the City of New York is the Minority Representation clause. This gives each voter as many votes as there are persons to be elected in his district, which votes may be divided amongst the candidates or accumulated upon any one or more of them. Each party, or interest, can be represented according to its strength. If, for instance, there be 80,000 Democrats and 50,000 Republicans in New York, and forty Alderman are choser, the Democrats will elect twenty-five and the Republicans fifteen of them, very nearly. The majority rule but the minority are heard and felt.

-Now, if the Radical Reformers in the South Carolina Legislature are in earnest, they can do good service by introducing and passing a Complete or Minority Representatation Bill, under which the Fall elections for members of the General Assembly may be held. All the prominent Radicals in South Carolina, in journalism and in unmixed politics, have announced themselves in favor of Minority Representation. They know that, if the plan gives the Conservatives an advantage in one part of the State it secures to the Radicals a corresponding advantage in other sections. It enables the minority, not to control the majority, but to have that representation which is their due. They have only the weight to which their numbers entitle them. It is, however, needless to repeat the well known arguments in favor of Minority Representation. The intrinsic justice of the plan is admitted where ever it is understood, and if Mr. Bowen honand capable government, he cannot adopt a better course than that of making himsel the leader of the movement for the represen tation of minorities. This will not interfere with the good work of smashing the Ring. The honest citizens have before them a double task : that of convicting and punish ing the public robbers and that ing new frauds in the future by elevating the character and improving the tone of the Legthe adoption, by a Radical Legislature, of a voice in the councils of the State, would place the South Carolina Republicans on the line with the Republican Reformers of the able, the partridges must be trapped without East and West, and would keep South a constant source of danger to the National Republican party. Journals like the Boston Advertiser and the New York Tribune know and admit that frauds and robberies such as those which are confessed by the South Carolina Radicals must break down any political party which attempts to uphold them. These journals demand that the administration of affairs in this State be purified. And the adoption of a plan of Minority Representation would be, from even their stand-point, an encouraging sign that their party had not lost all political sagacity as well as public virtue. The plan of minority representation, for by the Conservatives in the Southern The Fence Laws.

which is expected to be the bulwark of the minority in New York, may well serve as a safeguard to the minority in South Carolina.

What is demanded as a right by the Republican minorities in the North, cannot be

A correspondent of the Columbia Union whose letter is printed elsewhere, makes a strong argument in favor of the repeal of the present fence law, which is a terrible stumbling block to the small farmers, and is ar injury, more or less serious, to every landowner in the State. Let the law be repealed.

The State Fair Next Fall.

Colonel D. Wyatt Aiken, the Secretary of the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical Society, invites the co-operation of citizens of the State in completing the premium list for the fair to be held next Fall. Any suggestions of alterations or improvements sent to him at Cokesbury, S. C., will meet with due consideration. Colonel Aiken also requests the secretary of any agricultural, horticultural or mechanical association in the State, to send him the names and postoffices of the officers of the association.

No. 306 KING STREET

Between Wentworth and Society streets, has been pronounced by purchasers to be best regulated and most commodious house of its character in this city. Its consignments outnumber annually any house in the Grocery line; and its GREATEST opponents accord to it a "go-ahead" principle that cannot be equalled. By industry and perse-fully up to the times. No one will deny that point of cheapness, and the character of its goods, t cannot be surpassed by any establishment of this description; and all know that the goods on sale by Wilson Bros. are at prices that cannot fail to please the people of · CHARLESTON!
